

Dear FCC:

I am writing to comment on your consideration of whether to allow nudity and expletives on broadcast television.

I am firmly against such things being allowed. Allowing such things not only has a negative impact on our overall culture, but it will further expose innocent children to the indecencies that continue to be dreamed up by Hollywood screenwriters.

It is important that the FCC stand against such cultural pollution. As some in Hollywood try to drag the overall culture further into the cesspool of their evil imaginations, I would appreciate you standing firm against this.

In summary, I am strongly against allowing nudity or expletives on network television.

Thank you for allowing me a voice in this.

Tim Upshaw